

U of Miami Gain is UPS Loss; Bock Resigns

Open Letter to Faculty and Students of UPS

DR. ROBERT BOCK
Vice President and Dean of the University of Puget Sound

I wish to inform you that my registration has been submitted effective June 30, 1969 to accept the position of Dean of the School of Business (business administration, economics, government and public administration) at the University of Miami. My family and I have deeply enjoyed a very rewarding four-year period here, and we also eagerly anticipate a new professional and personal commitment at Coral Gables, Florida.

The decision was clarified by recent developments which made it apparent that this was the best decision. We very much regret leaving close colleagues and friends with whom we have shared rising aspirations, developing professional standards, and an unusual rapport that have for some time provided my main motivation. The personal support you extended to me constitute the most meaningful gesture that has ever come my way.

Together we developed a good program, and I would hope that you would continue to find satisfaction in the same values and commitments that are inherent in that program.

Sincerely,
ROBERT BOCK,
Vice-President

Faculty and Students Push Bock's Retention

Last week the news reached the general population of students and faculty at the University of Puget Sound that Dean Robert Bock, vice-president of the university was considering other job opportunities in the east.

Students and faculty alike took this news to heart and passed out two different sets of petitions calling for the retention of Dean Bock to be submitted to Dr. Thompson.

The faculty letter received support from about 100 members. The students were able to collect approximately 60 names on their petitions, distributed in the SUB and through the heads of various departments on campus.

It reads:

We understand that Dean Bock has recently been interviewed for an administrative position at another university. Because Dean Bock has become symbolic to students of progressive academic change, we feel it would be in the best interest of UPS to retain him if possible. We therefore strongly request that all steps necessary be taken in order that Dean Bock might remain at the university.

At the time of this writing (Tuesday) Dean Bock's decision to take a job at the University of Miami in Miami, Florida, is this "No commitments have been reached either way. Conversations are still going on and I will not know for sure for several days."

Wednesday, Feb. 26, 1969; Lengthy Decision Reaches Climax

This morning the University of Puget Sound received the resignation of Dean Robert H. Bock. Dean Bock has rendered very outstanding service to the University in the four years that he has been here. He has been offered a very distinguished position at the University of Miami where he will be Dean of the School of Business (business administration, economics, government and public administration) which is one of the most excellent positions of this type in America.

We regret very much losing Dean Bock, for it has been a privilege for the administration, faculty, trustees, and students to work with him. We are fully cognizant that when these opportunities come to a man the decision must be his concerning the major developments in his career.

We are grateful to Dean Bock for the leadership he has given and wish him well.

I shall immediately be calling a faculty committee together to select his successor.

Cordially yours,
R. FRANKLIN THOMPSON
President

Student Voice Asked for in UPS Planning

Recently the UPS Board of Trustees and Dr. Thompson requested that Dean Robert Bock prepare a study on the long-range aims and goals of the University.

The report has been completed by Dean Bock, and the Trustees have authorized formation of a committee of Trustees, Administration, faculty, and students to continue research into the future aims and goals of UPS.

At the Faculty Senate meeting last Monday, Dr. Thompson explained the report and requested the senate to select 4 faculty members to sit on the committee. Selection of the members will be made by the whole faculty by normal election procedures.

Air Fare Dispute:

NSA Fights CAB

Washington, D.C.—The United States National Student Association (NSA) will fight the recommendations of a Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) examiner calling for the abolition of youth fares as "unjustly discriminatory," and has retained legal counsel to prepare briefs and oral arguments for presentation before the CAB.

The announcement of NSA's action came from Services Division director Alan C. Handell, who noted that at present the Association is the only group representing student users of the airline youth fare which will make arguments before the Federal board.

Abolition of youth fares is being sought by a number a bus companies. NSA will argue that in view of the educational, social, economic, and cultural benefits afforded by the youth fares and young adult fares, the fares should not be cancelled.

Written arguments will be presented to the CAB by February 26. Oral arguments will be made at a later date. NSA is being represented by the Washington law firm of Koteen and Burt, who are experts in air fare matters.

Handell urged that students interested in retaining youth fares contact him at USNSA, 2115 S. Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20008.

NSA is a national confederation of nearly 40 student government associations. It is the oldest national grouping of American student governments, founded in 1947.

THE TRAIL SOUNDING BOARD

Crucial Elections Coming Up

Dialogue Before Action, But Action

Of this year's general elections at UPS, I would say that it not only could be, but IS extremely crucial. The students at this university have had a government this past semester which has dealt with a number of important issues concerning the maintenance of students' rights, and these efforts must be continued.

Paved Roads

These are some of the reasons why student government at UPS must be in the hands of responsible, mature and determined students: two roads which have been paved this year are the establishment of a student conduct code, a conduct review committee, and the inclusion of students on curriculum and winterim committees. These two things have stemmed from student dissatisfaction with the making of crucial decisions, which concern them, without their own say.

Violence Not the Answer

Students for this generation of student government need to be on to the idea of individual student rights, and the legitimate means by which they can be achieved. As we are all aware, there has been no direct violence at UPS, such as what we are witnessing in campuses across the country. But this doesn't for one minute indicate that there is not student dissent and concern over the situation now facing us.

Students should participate, not just maintain some loose form of dialogue, in all respects of decision making which affect them. They should be allowed continued access to information at such discussions as the faculty senate meetings, board of trustees meetings, curriculum meetings, financial meetings, and others. This is not to say that students have to be the final policy makers (as many enrolled at other campuses are advocating), but they should be represented as fairly and completely as possible by the students themselves. What is education for if not for the students? And what about the cry of the forefathers of the country in 1776 . . . something like "No taxation without fair representation?"

A Call for Participation

This is why, this year of all years, it is important that the students of UPS understand their responsibility. We have to have at least half of the student body turn out to vote, in order to elect the ones to represent a simple majority of us. We have to support the election convocation meetings and listen to what the candidates are saying through the Trail and KUPS radio. We need intelligent, mature, and responsible candidates, black and white alike, who will work for the improvement of relations and of the general welfare of the student. They are going to be the ones to someday take over the leadership of the country, and they might as well take advantage of a unique learning laboratory, the ASB of UPS.

Words Behind Deeds

The Trail will be watching the campaigns, the words spoken, the promises made, and the responses of students. More than this, the Trail will be watching carefully to see that those who do make it through the elections are putting action behind their words. The dialogue is necessary, but the ac-

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Is it Time? 'Courageous Editor' Faileth?

To the Editor:

Two years ago, Dave Neiser and I urged Central Board to accept representation by the Off Campus Students. The OCSA was accepted at that time, without a voting status. Our goal was a voting position within 1½-3 years.

For the first semester, Dave, and I worked closely with the OCSA leadership. Speaking for myself, I saw a rapid surge of interest, followed by a steady decline over the last year.

A constitutional amendment is being prepared during this election period. I believe the effectiveness of voting Off-campus students must be seriously questioned as long as there is no effective organization behind those students. I believe in the goal of Off campus voting on Central Board, but I must ask the backers of this amendment if the time has really come.

Yours,
Dixon Rice

To the Editor:

Because you couldn't leave well enough alone and had to reply to my unflattering lines in verse regarding the Trail, I propose to set down my greatest disappointment concerning the paper. This disappointment concerns the rather sudden change which occurred between Oct. 4 and Oct. 11 and succeeding issues of the Trail. In the Oct. 4 issue one finds a kind of questioning (cf. "An Open Letter to Doctor Thompson") that never again is seen. I can only surmise that you underwent some kind of mystical experience which transformed you. Only my flights of fancy can suggest what might have happened. Indeed, they do in this scenario:

(Scene: A pastoral location, Pilgrim Firs perhaps. The scene opens as a courageous young editor looks up to see a whirlwind and to hear a voice issuing from it.)

VOICE: Who is this that darkeneth council by words without knowledge? I will demand of thee, and answer thou me. Where wast thou when I laid the foundation of the University? Hast thou commanded the faculty since thy days? Canst thou bind the sweet influence of the Registrar, or loose the bands of the Deans? Shall he that contendeth with the Almighty instruct him? He that reproveth God, let him answer.

COURAGEOUS YOUNG EDITOR: Behold I am vile; what shall I answer thee? I abhor myself and repent in dust and ashes.

(Young Editor repents and goes forth to sin no more.)

Yours again,
JIM LYLES

Notice to Off Campus Students

There will be a special meeting FOR YOU Tuesday night, March 4 at 7:30 p.m. in McIntyre 006. Proposed constitutional amendments (including off campus representation on Central Board) will be discussed. Political candidates will also be present.

Review Evokes Faculty Comment

To the Editor:

I wish to compliment Mr. Powers on his penetrating review of Professor Hansen's lecture on Yeats. Many of his colleagues and students would agree that Professor Hansen is indeed "too academic"—he insists upon discussing ideas in a rational and scholarly way. Poor chap, he can't help it. Perhaps Mr. Powers will undertake the task of instructing him in the art of lightweight entertainment unencumbered by thought.

Yours Sincerely,
S. Stokes

MORE LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

In your attempted rebuttal to Mr. Lyles' moc-heroic poem, which, incidentally, does not at all resemble blank verse, you asked for "a list of detailed, constructive suggestions for the improvement of this newspaper." With the reservation that it is the job of the well-paid staff of the UPS Trail to improve its quality, I would be glad to oblige. Permit me to take the last issue as an example.

Out of 40 columns of type, barely 20 are valid copy. I don't know what a good ad-to-copy ratio is, but 50 percent is rather bad.

Another Super-Tattler?

Out of 18 headlined articles, only five were coverages of events that had happened, fully eight were "bulletin board" notices, three were corrections of major mistakes printed in earlier issues. It seems that the Trail is a super tattler.

Let's take a look at page one, the place usually reserved for major items. We see an advertisement for chapel, one for the Student Advisory Council, one for the Peace Corps, one for Triple Exposure (being a new event, coverage of this is not objectionable), and advertisement for Graduate Record Examinations, a photograph of three people listening to a fourth, the beginning of a bad review of a bad show, and six column inches of "filler" titled "Inside this Issue."

Activism at UPS

Page two: item one, your editorial. You said that "as any piece of current journalism can portray, the cause of students has shifted dramatically toward social change and civil right." First, student activism started with the civil rights movement. Second, this issue of the Trail has exactly one article dealing with social change and civil rights. Item two: Dean Henry's letter is good and I'm glad he sent it, but what does it say to us here? Item three: a completely esoteric, unfathomable cartoon, or, if taken at face value, with no underlying references, ridiculously insane. Item four: An attempt by Al Kiest to break his arm patting people on the back. Tom Iverson and Warren Smith haven't done any "imaginative exploiting," they've just jumped on the tails of a production agency which now tells us what groups are coming to campus, although cheaply.

Degeneration . . .

I won't continue; the following pages degenerate to the last page having about 15 percent copy. But a few more comments. It's nice to have a reviewer finally, but why did Mr. Powers say nothing of the content of Dr. Hansen's lecture, only covering form and delivery?

Also, what about Central Board meetings? If they are as childish as I have traditionally maintained, why not point out this wasted leadership? If the meetings are as significant as the fools involved believe, they should've covered. Don't reply with "deadlines," I noticed you have a Wednesday photograph on page one.

Detailed List . . .

I've been overly long with these preliminary suggestions, but you did ask for details. Permit me to close by listing a few areas for you to think about.

1. News, not notices, and about UPS.
2. Editorials about and relevant to UPS students.
3. Reviews — neither of the two drama productions, which involve much time, money and attendance of UPS students, which had a signed review.
4. Letters to the editor — why have you on occasion refused to print letters as submitted?
5. As an instrument of change — is everything right at UPS? If not, what strong stands are being taken in print? (Dorm keys—wow!!) Not so respectfully submitted,

ROBERT COUNTRYMAN

Literary Arts Review Rapped

To the Editor:

It seems to me that the review by Ron Powers of the opening of the Spring Literary Arts Festival indicates the need for a good journalism department at UPS. Mr. Powers calls Dr. Tim Hansen's knowledge of last year's program "second hand," and says the speaker "refrained from any emotion" in his presentation. But perhaps the audience did not expect Dr. Hansen to imitate last years speakers or to prove his powers as a fiery orator.

Most working newsmen agree that a really good story—whether it is spot news or a critical review—ought to interest and inform the reader. But Mr. Powers review says nothing of the content of the lecture, and so those who were unable to attend have no idea of Dr. Hansen's insights into Yeats' poetry.

Many students and faculty members came prepared to take notes and left Dr. Hansen's lecture with considerably more than that "superficial knowledge of Yeats" which the reviewer laments. Is there a possibility that the professor did not "misjudge" the intelligence of his audience after all?

Perspectives in Black and White

by BARB CLEMENTS

A recent issue of the magazine, Psychology Today, depicted two scenes on the outside covers. On the front, a dark-skinned child sat in a room. He wore a white T-shirt, white pants, white socks and white shoes. He sat on a white chair, by a white TV on a white table. Everything in the room was white, even the windowpanes and the mirror. He was surrounded by four white walls and a white ceiling. He looked very much like a little inmate.

On the back cover, a few black-skinned people moved around on a city street. They, too, wore all white clothes, and were in a small minority in comparison with the people all around them. White sidewalks and white streets held white cars and white buses. White telephone poles pointed upward toward white buildings and a white sky. The only non-white things in the pictures on both covers were the arms, legs and faces of the blacks.

"But," you say, "Can't you see this is an exaggeration? Do you really believe that the whole country is white and black people are imprisoned in it? It's a free country, and those who want to get anywhere have to work hard."

My friends, I do believe this represents an attitude blacks and whites both are guilty of. I believe both groups feel that a person has to WORK to get anywhere, but also that he must be WHITE if he's serious about going to his goals. No wonder black people are sick to death of the whole system. It's a white system; sure, it's broken up among the Irish, English, Polish, Jewish, Spanish, Oriental, Indian, and many more shades of white, but white nonetheless. No matter what blacks accomplish, it seems they can only rise so far, because white people always are in the position above them.

Now, I ask you, what is the reason for the attitudes so prevalent among blacks and whites today? Is it not because so many blacks have seen nothing but the insides of substandard schools and white minds (no matter what the skin color is)? Even in elementary school, Dick, Jane and Sally were all lily-white, and Africa was the country you go AROUND, not TO to get anywhere. Nearly every class on up through the school system, be it political science, English, art, social science, or drama, is centered around white people and what they have done. I know, because the only time I ever remember reading about the black problem was in my American history class in the period of the Civil War and Reconstruction. I never learned about Crispus Attucks, W. E. Du-

Now, Mr. Lincoln? Entertainment Hour Scheduled

Students at the University of Puget Sound are planning a "Now, Mr. Lincoln?" entertainment hour to begin at 3 p.m. Friday in Kilworth Memorial Chapel on campus.

A donation of two dollars or more per person will be given to the "Now, Mr. Lincoln?" campaign fund drive to raise "seed money" for down payments on black-owned businesses in Tacoma.

Those in charge of the entertainment hour, which will feature short presentations of folk, jazz and classical music and play excerpts from "Of White America," presented by the Black Student Union, are Robin Gleason and Kristin Schutte.

Refreshments will be served in the Catacombs, downstairs in Kilworth Chapel.

Students have noted the event will be open to the community.

"Persons may come anytime after 3 p.m. to see the 10-minute programs," said Miss Gleason.

Rugby Match

Sunday proved to be one of frustration for the UPS Rugger. In what turned out to be a rather odd score of 3-0 the UPS club failed to score on several excellent opportunities.

The only score came from Seattle Rugby Club's Ed Harkin in the opening minutes of the first half on a drop kick over goal from fifteen yards out. The rest of the game saw UPS cross the enemy goal at least twice only to be called back on penalties. Jacques Garrigues had two beautiful breaks only to drop the ball on approaching enemy opposition.

The next home game for the Loggers will be March 22 in which they find themselves host of a Washington-Oregon tournament.

TLT Serves Dinner

(PR) — "DINNER AT EIGHT", George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber's Comedy-Drama, will open at the Tacoma Little Theatre Feb. 28th; and also play March 1, 6, 7, 8, 12, 13, 14 and 15.

The play is an amusing, moving, seething cross-section of life that the playwrights show so deftly beneath a suave exterior.

Obert, Georgette Hansen, Alida Evans, Charles Vawter, Louis Talcott, Darrell Darnell.

Church in Our Time

"The Clergy are as harlots kept by the Church and payed to do what most men in our culture would never do." Such is a typical comment by the founder of the Ecumenical Institute, the Rev. Joe Matthews. Several years ago the National Council of Churches established a committee to look into new ways of education within the Church in our time. The result of these discussions has been an international movement known as the Ecumenical Institute.

The Institute has its home base in Chicago in the midst of the black ghetto. Courses are offered through the Institute there that deal with theology, culture, history, the arts . . . all as they pertain to the radical responsibility that man must take on in our time if we are ever to understand what it means to be fully human.

Local groups of persons who are in sympathy with the "EI" movement meet in major cities throughout the nation. The most interesting aspect of the Institute is their teaching method which is designed to bring the laymen into a theological awareness. The Chicago Institute has involved whole families within this structure and now exists as the only family order within the Church.

A speaker from the Seattle Ecumenical Institute will address Chapel at 11:00 a.m. this coming Wednesday, March 5.

The UPS Logger Varsity Ski Team and the PLU Varsity Ski Team held their Annual Andra Deksheniks Meet at Crystal Mt. last Saturday. Western Washington also took part in the race. UPS gave up the four trophies to PLU; however we took six out of the nine medals.

bois, or Le Roi Jones. But I knew that black people were struggling to make it in a white world, because I heard them sing the blues with all that feeling.

Now I am becoming more aware of what these people have done and are continuing to do; everything from writing to transplanting hearts, to governing. And I would like to be even more aware still.

I believe there IS money for a black studies course to be established through grants and community interest. There are qualified teachers in this area who would lend a black perspective to many different types of courses.

Travels of a Ski Bum DEADWOOD...

by ED GALEN

12/31... 9:30 a.m.

we woke up ready to ski.

but decided to drive home instead (get home for the New Years Eve Parties)

... 10:00 a.m.

we hobbled to a gas station in Ketchum to repair the broken chains

... 10:20 a.m.

we were on our way

We arrived in Boise in 2½ hours as compared to the 5 hours that it took to get to Sun Valley on the Saturday before

At this point we expected to be home by 7:30 p.m. allowing for snow conditions along the way.

We reached snow almost as soon as we got into Oregon

Were tailed by policeman for five miles, not acknowledging his signs to pull over.

Received a ticket for expired license plate. And resumed travel.

Ten minutes later, were stopped again to be warned about expired plates.

without profanity, explained that we had already received a ticket for the felony.

the sky became dark, and we crept along passed by many trucks one passed, kicked up a cloud of snow, temporarily causing zero visibility causing us to veer off the road into a ditch.

Ed pushed, Jeff steered, all the time laughing uncontrollably

This continued for a while, until we finally got out of the ditch.

After putting the tire chains on (so that a repeat performance would not occur) we were again on our way.

We drove on through Pendleton, and then things really started.

The snow had mounted up enough so that we could see no tire tracks on the highway (snow still falling heavily)

It wasn't long before we heard a loud clanking on the left side of the car. We had broken a tire chain, so we took it off and threw it in the car.

A few minutes later, it felt like the car was unbalanced so we got out of the car to take a look... A FLAT TIRE

We opened up the trunk to get out the spare and the jack.

We pulled out the bald spare and the special Mustang jack.

We soon found that the "special Mustang jack" could not get high enough to replace the tire. So, we stood there in 1 degree weather trying to flag down one of the many cars that was passing us. In a few minutes a car appeared (it was about time)

We tried to flag him down, and it worked. There was one problem though... he didn't have a jack at all. We waited for awhile and then a truck came. We flagged him down, but found that he couldn't help either, because his jack was frozen.

After about 5 minutes more, a state trooper came to our aid.

After replacing the tire, we were again on our way (cold, but at this point, so rummy because of our misfortunes that we were again laughing uncontrollably) with a bald tire on the left wheel, with no chain... and a bald tire with a chain on the right side... And a spare tire that was flat.

... 8:00 p.m.

We were driving along, then suddenly... clank, clank, clank, clank... The right chain broke, so Ed jumped out, took it

Triple Exposure Debut

Triple Exposure Program for next Thursday, March 6th, will revolve around the theme "Fanfare" in the arts of music, painting, and dramatic interpretation. With the Fanfare music on a varied family of trumpets will be Tom Anderson and David Leavens. The art work of Mike Franklin a senior in art will be showing as a supplement to the bold, splashy theme of Fanfare. Dramatists will perform readings from Shakespeare drawn from those portions where nobility is presented in court scenes.

Be sure to attend these Thursday noon (12:15-12:45) presentations for a taste, at least, of what the arts can offer. Informality is part of the program, so bring your lunch and have free coffee while there, in the Chapel basement.

World Campus Afloat is a college that does more than broaden horizons. It sails to them and beyond.

Once again, beginning in October of 1969, the World Campus Afloat program of Chapman College and Associated Colleges and Universities will take qualified students, faculty and staff into the world laboratory.

In-port programs relevant to fully-accredited coursework taught aboard ship add the dimension of personal experience to formal learning.

Classes are held six days a week at sea aboard the s.s. Ryndam which has been equipped with classrooms, laboratories, library, student union, dining room and dormitories.

Chapman College now is accepting applications for the Fall and Spring semesters of the 1969-70 academic year. Fall semesters depart New York for ports in Western Europe and the Mediterranean, Africa and South America, ending in Los Angeles. Spring semesters circle the world from Los Angeles through the Orient, India and South Africa to New York.

For a catalog and other information, complete and mail the coupon below.

SAFETY INFORMATION: The s.s. Ryndam, registered in The Netherlands, meets International Safety Standards for new ships developed in 1948 and meets 1966 fire safety requirements.

The Sellability Gap

SUBA Results Examined

By BARBARA CLEMENTS

The results of SUBA, and ASUPS sponsored organization which helps students to sell used books, were rewarding to those who participated in the program. One hundred and eight people participated and $480.00 worth of books were sold.

One predominate thought seems to be WHY CAN'T THE UPS BOOKSTORE HANDLE THIS TYPE OF PROGRAM FOR STUDENTS? In order for this type of a program to benefit the most it must be continuous throughout the year, not merely a one-week enterprise. If the UPS Bookstore handled such a program this would be possible.

This year $30.00 worth of books were stolen. SUBA will reimburse the students who submitted these books at a loss to SUBA. Due to this type of problem in handling books and the need for a continuous operation a new plan for the operation of SUBA is now being planned.

Phil Henderson stated that "this organization helped a lot of students this semester. One student dropped a class after one week and had purchased a $9.95 book for which the bookstore offered him $1.00. He sold his book through SUBA for $5.25." This is one example of the type of exploitation of students through the book buyer and the benefits of SUBA to the student.

This type of situation needs to be evaluated and a change for the benefit of the student needs to occur.

Through SUBA saleswork two students were able to work 6 hours a day for one week and earn $500.00 based on a ten percent commission of sales they earned $50.00.

A great improvement to the present system would result if:

- 1.) the bookstore would handle the books on a limited selection basis, from semester to semester.
- 2.) a price control was to be established by the bookstore so that the situation of books purchased from students at low prices wouldn't be resold at high prices. Reduce the mark up.

The Sophomore honors colloquia, on the "ROLE OF STUDENTS," questions the merits of the present system and sees a need for a change. They stated that "We believe that the proper facilities for this service exist in the present bookstore and should not be handled through a one-week student-used book sale."

Mrs. Fannie Lou Hamer Speaks of Legitimate Means and Black Power

By BARB CLEMENTS

Speaking in a clear, deliberate voice with a touch of Mississippi drawl, Mrs. Fannie Lou Hamer held the attention of a sparse but interested house Friday evening, Feb. 21.

Mrs. Hamer 51, who spoke from his own personal perspective, told the story of her upbringing in southern tension-ridden Mississippi and her eventual rise to a place of influence with citizenship.

She was one of 20 children, grandchild of a slave, which survived by picking cotton on a white Montgomery County plantation. At the age of 13 she was picking from 2-300 lbs. of cotton a day, and wondered why the family had nothing to eat or wear.

She can remember her mother's reply to her question "Why am I black and not White?", as being a direct answer, "because God made you a black child, and you must respect that, one day other people will respect you."

Her experiences gradually led her to the realization that she could register and vote, in 1962, but hadn't been able to since she picked cotton all day. Eventually she became determined enough to go to the courthouse and register for her right. Met by an enraged camp of armed whites with dogs, she went inside. The illiteracy test was a very discouraging experience, for she was asked to read and interpret a section of the constitution dealing with de-facto laws. Naturally, she flunked the test. Going home to Ruebille, the driver was fined for driving colored people.

Her life has been continually threatened because her intelligence made the general society suspicious.

In the land of the free and the brave, she was asked to leave her home because she had registered to vote. Bold bullets were shot at her house where she lived.

After the return from a voter registration workshop teaching the blacks how to vote, she ran into violence and hatred in a restaurant. She was arrested and taken to jail, where she heard screams and interrogations of "can't you say yes sir! Nigger?". Mrs. Hamer was brutally beaten with the other women in the jail, because they had registered to vote. She suffered a damaged kidney and a blood clot that nearly blinded her left eye. The charge was disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

A few days later she learned of Medger Evers' death and started to relate all the events across the country. She knew the feelings of the blacks and had never been treated with the dignity and respect of a human being.

"A lot of people think were out for equal rights, but I don't want to be equal to anybody who raped my ancestors and stole my name. And I don't understand why colleges around the country refuse to let black men learn about the contributions of black people."

Mrs. Hamer decided to lead a delegation to go to the state capitol and protest the unfair representation in the Senate. Refusing to comply, Mrs. Hamer ran on the Freedom ticket for senator and got 33,000 votes.

She was told by the Sub-Committee on elections, that the blacks weren't wrong, its just that every Southern State would want new representation if it was granted to one. The challenge issued was: the feelings of the whites verses the feelings of the blacks.

"White America, you should know by now that you can't save yourself by teaching us to hate—you have to learn to love." We're not fighting men, we're fighting principalities and the devil himself."

An important message to outstanding college graduates.

And How About The U.S. in Asia?

(PR)—Dr. Richard N. Gardner, Professor of Law and International Relations at Columbia University, will speak on "Are We Overcommitted in Asia?" in Mc 6 at 8 p.m. next Thursday, March 6.

Dr. Gardner, who served as Senior Advisor to U.S. Ambassador to the U.N. Arthur Goldberg, frequently finds his working days taken up with a host of duties that range from the United Nations to Columbia University to important assignments in Washington, D.C.

DR. RICHARD GARDNER

As a young man still in his thirties, he went to Washington to serve as Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for International Organization Affairs. Dr. Gardner was concerned with such vital matters as: U.S. foreign policy interest in international organizations, peacekeeping and disarmament, outer space, the world population explosion, and the international protection of basic human rights.

In 1965 he returned from the nation's capital to resume his teaching at Columbia University as well as to act as a U.N. advisor. He serves as consultant to the U.S. Department of State and as a member of its Advisory Committee in International Organizations.

He played a principle role in negotiations on the establishment of the U.N. machinery in the field of trade and redevelopment.

And This Is What Is Called A Groovy Trip ???

off, and threw it in the car. The next hour we spent driving very slow . . . especially when those big trucks passed us.

. . . 9 p.m.

We arrived in the Dalles to get some hot chocolate, repair the flat, repair the chains, call home, and hear the radio say that the highway is closed between The Dalles and Portland (because of 10 foot drifts of snow on the highway).

Realizing that, when Jeff called home, his parents really started worrying. Ed decided not to call home.

. . . 9:45 p.m.

We are still in The Dalles, at the gas station.

After looking at the shape of the chains, we decided that new chains would be a good investment (especially since we planned to take a road around Mt. Hood and down through Government Camp). A man who was driving a large cab pulling another cab (neither had trailer rigs) was looking for a way to Portland, so we told him to follow us . . . kind of an insurance in case something else happened to us.

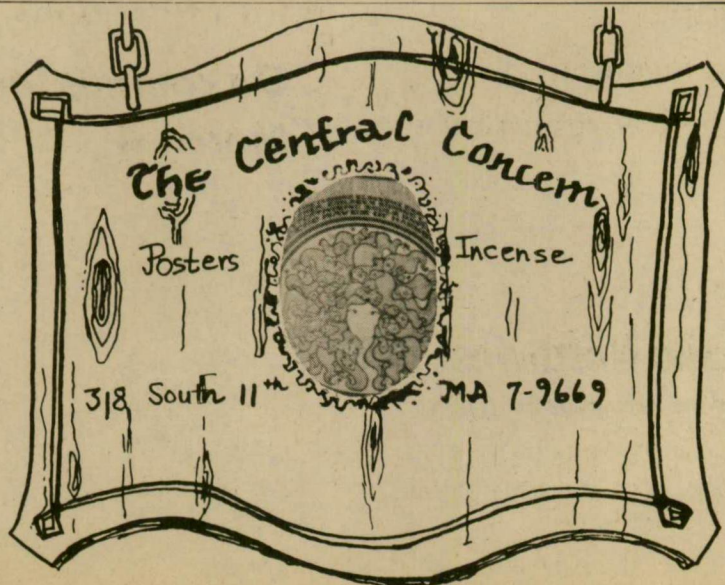

We stopped after awhile so the trucker could tighten his chains, and then we were off . . . We let the truck pass us, and we then followed a short distance behind. After about 20 miles of driving, we smelled a very unpleasant odor (like that of burning brakes, or transmission). Our brakes were completely released, so we figured it must be the transmission.

We were on a downhill grade, so we coasted for about 2 miles (in neutral). The odor never did go away . . .

Then we caught up with the trucker who was along side the road (flames coming out of the inside of his wheel). We stopped and for the next 5 minutes we threw snow at it, and rubbed snow on the brake linings.

When the fire was out, we continued. When we came to the junction of 216 we waited for the truck.

It was basically smooth riding all the way over Mt. Hood except for a few smoothly executed fishtails here and there.

We celebrated the New Year somewhere on Mt. Hood (the south side) by honking our horn for a while . . . what a party! We took the new chains off, just above Gov't. Camp. At this point it was pretty slushy. Then we made good time, except when we hit a lake of water in the road at about 50 mpm. The water flowed around and over the car.

After leaving the pond we found that our brakes were wet enough that we drove for about a mile before we had the use of our brakes restored.

When we got into Wood Village we found that it was colder and there was more snow. We decided to try and make it without putting the chains back on. We got stuck about three blocks from the freeway into town. One chain couldn't pull us out so we put the other on. As soon as we got on the freeway we got stuck in a large snow drift. We were helped out of the drift by some men with snow removal equipment.

We followed them on into town, and ended the trip with some hot chocolate and cookies at Ed's house.

Spring Brings Dramatics

The University Drama Department has a wide variety of plays to offer for Spring semester. Beginning the semester is a studio production — the first in the newly decorated chapel basement — on March 7 and 8. The duet plays come from the theatre of the absurd and will be in-the-round. The first play, NO EXIT by Jean Paul Sartre, is concerned with three characters who find that HELL is other people. Directed by Jane Hermann, the cast of NO EXIT includes Roger Tomkins as Valet, Keith Haus-hahn as Garcin, Becky Sprang as Estelle, and Marti Dirkes as Inez. The second of the pair is THE BALD SOPRANO by Eugene Tonesco; this seemingly light play deals with the degeneration of language as a means of communication between people. Debbie Shaw and Ruth Davis combine efforts as directors while Annette Broughton as Mrs. Smith, Dave Vergin as Mr. Smith, Toni Sowers as Mrs. Martin, Peter Freer as Mr. Martin, Colleen Chun as Mary, and Don Carter as the fireman make up the cast. Come partake of an evening of absurdity in the round March 7 and 8 at 8 in the basement of Kilworth. A charge of .50 is payable at the door on these nights —there will be no reserved seats.

Later in March is Tennessee Williams' delicate play THE GLASS MENAGERIE. A major production, THE GLASS MENAGERIE deals with the very real problem of the generation gap and the conflict between Amanda Wingfield and her two children, Tom and Laura. Dave Lyles takes the part of Tom while Maila Putnam as Laura, Jim Phillips as Jim and Daisy Baar as Amanda help present Tennessee Williams' first really popular play.

THE GLASS MENAGERIE is a memory play and as such is highly non-realistic, particularly in stage setting. Things are mere suggestions of what they were — like a half-remembered dream. One reason for the anti-realism in the play is that Williams discovered that realism was not the key to reality. Because people see their world from their own peculiar point of view, Williams removes his audience from the attempt at realism. Instead he shows a remembered happening, a memory, to illustrate what things Tom exaggerates and what he felt important enough to remember.

THE GLASS MENAGERIE opens March 19 and will play each evening at 8 p.m. through March 22. Joint the quartet of actors in a revealing probe into the problems of the generation gap.

A Modern Garden of Eden

Cinema

By RON POWERS

Last night the UFF presented "East of Eden," the screen adaptation of John Steinback's sprawling 1952 novel. The title of the book comes from the Bible, where Cain "went out from the presence of the Lord, and dwelt in the land of Nod, on the east of Eden." Elia Kazan, the director of this 1955 movie, covers the last half of the book, which attempts to retell the biblical story of Cain and Abel in modern terms.

"Cain and Able"

Raymond Massey portrays Adam Trask, the father of two boys, Aron (Richard Davalos) and Caleb (James Dean). The good boy, Aron, wants to follow in his father's business but Caleb doesn't, and to confuse matters even more both boys love the same girl, Abra (Julie Harris).

Truth Angers Brother

Adam is a stern puritanical figure who is repelled by the soft and frivolous in life. He tells his sons that their mother is dead, but Caleb discovers one day that she is a madam of a whorehouse in a neighboring town. Caleb's "killing" of his brother occurs when he tells his brother the real truth about their mother, which almost destroys Aron. The final scene in

He was not a big man, (only 5' 8"), but his gait, method of delivery, and way of life was a unique change from the other Hollywood stars of the early fifties, except perhaps Marlon Brando. He was often compared to Brando although Dean once said, "People were telling me I behave like Brando before I knew who Brando was."

Dean completed three movies in 1955: "East of Eden," "Rebel Without a Cause," and "Giant." About one week after "Giant" was finished, Dean was killed in his Porsche Spyder in a fiery crash. He was 24.

the movie presents a rapprochement between Adam, who has suffered a stroke, and Caleb. It is one on the finest and most touching scenes recorded on film.

Story Overnight

Kazan, who more recently has written and begun work on the movie, "The Arrangement," had at first selected Marlon Brando to play Caleb, but he was not available at the time of shooting, so Kazan selected a virtual unknown to play the part, James Dean. Dean literally became a star overnight from this picture.

Student Spirit Runs High As Loggers Whip Portland State Vikings

Ed Huston (No. 41) dives between two Portland State Vikings for a loose ball in last Saturday's game. UPS won easily, defeating them 112-86 to bring their season record to 22 wins against three defeats.

UPS Closing Most Successful Season, Await NCAA Decision on Tournament Berth

Tomorrow night for the last time the most victorious Logger team to come along since 1949 will play their final game of the 1968-69 season. Opposition for the game will be the third place Savages of Eastern Washington of the Evergreen Conference.

Playing their last game in Logger uniforms, unless chosen for the regionals to be held in Las Vegas at the University of Nevada, are the "Phoenix Trio," John Smith, Argie Rhymes, and Dave Lindstrom. Smith leads the team in scoring, Lindstrom is tops in free throws made and assists, and Rhymes for his brilliant defensive play.

Last week the Loggers ran into an aggressive Seattle Pacific Falcon team that simply stated by Coach Zech, "We were just outplayed, it was one of those frustrating nights."

The big gun for SPC was 6-2 senior Bob Burrows as he was hitting everything that came near the rim. He scored 33 points while center Larry Quesnell and John Glancy contributed 15 each.

Leading the Loggers in a losing cause were Charles Lowery with 16, John Smith at 15 and Dave Lindstrom hooping 14.

Things went better Saturday night as the Loggers tore Portland State apart winning 112-86. They felled Portland for the 22nd win in 25 games. Using a fast break and domination of the backboards in the second half was just too much for the Rose City boys. Game honors went to Leon Edmonds of Portland State with 26 while Dave Lindstrom's 19 topped the Loggers who had six players in double figures.

Results of the Pacific Lutheran game played Wednesday night were not available at press time.

John Heinrick, a well known Tacoman in sports throughout the Northwest and former Logger coach, was inducted last Monday night into the Washington State Hall of Fame. He was one of four men so honored at the banquet. Speakers were "Broadway Joe" (Joe Namath), quarterback John Dadl, football coaches Dee Andros, and Jim Sweeney along with other dignitaries.

Heinrick, whose association with football, basketball and baseball spans over forty years has many other distinguished awards such as being a member of the Pierce County Hall of Fame, Helms Foundation.

He said that his most rewarding experience has been "the association with the athletes and their parents; and it wasn't the money that kept me in sports for so long."

Swim Records Still Falling

Coming out of the north to strike again, the Simon Fraser Clansmen swamped the host Logger mermen under for their third defeat of the swim season. Earlier in the week UPS smashed rival PLU for coach Duncan's 99th win of his career.

Simon Fraser swept ten events setting meet records in all ten and established pool records in the 400 medley relay, 1000 freestyle, 200 freestyle, 200 individual medley and the 200 yard backstroke.

Dave Voss gets ready to anchor the last leg of the 400 freestyle relay.

UPS mermen Pete Hamilton and Ron Payne won their events, 50 yard freestyle and the 200 yard breaststroke, respectively. Another Logger record fell by the wayside as the quintet of Dave Voss, Bill Martin, Pete Hamilton and Steve Kimberley in the 400 freestyle relay.

Tomorrow the Loggers face Portland State University and Willamette University in the last scheduled NCAA meet before the finals take place the weekend of March 20 at Springfield College in Massachusetts. Already the Logger mermen have qualified two relay teams under the allotted times.

PICKING UP THE CHIPS

UPS grapplers finished their season drop bowing to Oregon College of Education 24-9 last Thursday. Overall their season record was five wins against 7 defeats as they met some tough competition throught the year.

UPS Black Courses?

Hamer Speech Sparks Action

By BARB CLEMENTS

At the speech given by Mrs. Fannie Lou Hamer Friday evening in Jones Hall auditorium (see story elsewhere in this issue), February 21, Dr. R. Franklin Thompson, president of UPS, was questioned as to his views of Black Courses on campus.

Lou Smith, UPS student and a leader in the current Social Sciences 111 course posed these three questions of Dr. Thompson: "Are you moved enough now to sanction a separate, autonomous black studies course curriculum here at UPS? Are you moved enough now to sanction the hiring of more black professors? Are you willing to take the 'raps' off the courses we have now?"

Dr. Thompson was requested by Smith that no answer be given at the time, but that he do serious thinking on the subject.

In a conversation held Saturday, Dr. Thompson stated that he was sorry that the whole thing had to be handled in this manner, and that the restricting factor in the establishment of more black courses at UPS was the financial situation. The curriculum budget (not the budget set aside for building and maintenance) is facing an enormous deficit, and that no department on campus would be likely to see the addition of new faculty members in the near future because of it.

At the Sunday meeting of the Black Students Union held in the student center, Smith was asked if his action were a deliberate attempt to embarrass the president.

"Definitely not," stated Smith. "This was my own idea after hearing Mrs. Hamer speak and not a plot to embarrass Doctor Thompson in any way."

The meaning of the word 'autonomous' was discussed, and found to mean course curriculum designed to lead to a degree in black studies, separate from a degree, in say, psychology. It does not mean classes which would admit only black students, as this would imply reverse segregation.

Professor Jonathan N'egno, political science professor from Kenya, Africa, was present at the meeting and stated that he didn't feel black teachers should be hired merely to fulfill a need. "I am teaching here because I know I am qualified to teach here, and because I can teach many subjects. Black teachers should be hired on the basis of their qualifications and not be expected to teach only black courses, although they are necessary to lend a black perspective in many cases." Professor N'egno is in favor of a degree program which would incorporate classes from many different departments such as art, anthropology, social sciences, psychology, and several others.

Constructive action is now underway to bring facts and opinions together on this important issue at the House of Critics debate March 12, 1969. The meeting will tentatively be open to the local press. Other ideas expressed at the BSU meeting were the obtaining of a book recently published by Sidney Walten from Oakland, California, on the establishment of a black course curriculum, and the addition of several black newspapers and magazines to the UPS Library.
